The results attained in battle are the promotion of lasting peace and a more perfect human brotherhood, dead, These are causes for rejoleing, and none would participate therein with truer patriotic ardor than the men whose graves are decorated with flowers to-day. The day is a perpetual reminder of the virility of American manhood. Time has tempered personal and family griefs. The deat are the nation's, and the nation glories in the life insured by the death of its best loved.

It is a lesson of patriotism that is taught by all the observances of the day. May its sucredness, its joyousness, its full signifcance continue to be borne in upon the minds of American youth; then the sacrifice honored in its ceremonials will not have been made in vain.

AIDS TO POETRY.

Everybody knows what an influence on poetical activity surroundings have. Of course, some people would not write poetry if they were in Paradise. ### PHILADELPHIA'S SCANDAL.

It is reldom that to one city comes such an accumulation of deplorable revelationas is now presented in Philadelpois. City Treasurer Bandsley is locked up in default of beavy bonds to appear for trial of charges of criminally misappropriating public moneys; the delinquent President of the Spring Garden National Bank is in Jail. the President of the Keystone Bank is a fugitive from justice. And, as if this were not more than sufficient, the prisoner Bangesing, breaks down and makes suc confessions that an old city banker turns pale and cries out in despair: "I don't know of any bank that can escape now !

The new facts exposed are, briefly, that Banneter deposited with various banks lurue sums of State and city money upon which he personally received interest Other arrests, based upon these revelations are freely predicted, and the city finds itself in a semi-panic, socially and financially. Bank directors have bastened to take counsel. Their affairs are the talk of ever hauschold. None can yet tell where it will all end. The scandal is a terrible one. It will case down well-known names. It is another of those dread social and business shadows that tend to make every man for the time suspect his neighbor. But the good of the community demands that the revolution now started shall go on to the bitter end and punishment be meted out regardless of Extremely Plain Skirts in Favor-Good Work of the King's Daughters-Cretonne in Demand by Upholsterers-The Decorative Rage Subsiding.

Nowadays skirts are extremely plain and close on the hips, with stoped or gored breadths widening towards the lower part; when the material is very wide, the selvages go across i the width, and there is only one scam at the track on the cross. A costume was made in this way of drap Excelsior, a light make of cloth, shot, and so fine and brilliant that it resemples silk, and is really more costly than good silk; it was made to fit close on the hips by small plaits inside. The skirt fell straight, was about three and a quarter yards wide at the foot, and about three inches or four inches on the ground at the back. The front was deeply empronlered with black and colored shaded beads, and at the extreme ed e a small black net ruche, with a gold thread border the bodice was made in the cuirasse shape.
